

Personal Statement

I am Reem Alshammari, a graduate with a Master's degree in Medical Sciences. I am applying for a PhD program to further develop my research capabilities and contribute to improving healthcare quality.

During my academic journey, I developed strong analytical and research skills, particularly in medical data analysis. These experiences motivated me to pursue advanced studies in a research-intensive environment.

I aim to join King's College London due to its strong academic reputation and advanced research facilities. I am committed to contributing meaningfully to the healthcare sector through scientific research